OVERVIEW

First opened in 1889, an authentic Roman spirit infuses radiant Hotel Eden, alive with the stories of a legendary city and the hospitality of its remarkable people.

The hotel offers 98 thoughtfully composed rooms and suites, each offering the feel of an elegant Roman residence. This is a peaceful oasis where historic authenticity meets delicate luxury.

Two dynamic restaurants include rooftop Il Giardino Ristorante, which serves modern Italian cuisine with mesmerising views of the city, and fine dining restaurant La Terrazza. La Libreria, meanwhile, is an inviting sitting room serving coffee and late-night drinks from the secret bar.

For pampering, The Eden Spa is a warm, vaulted hideaway where guests enjoy the therapists' undivided attention. This is the place to relax and take time out to yourself, with luxury treatments from Valmont and Mei.

HISTORY

Hotel Eden has long held a place in the hearts of international travellers and locals alike. Over the years it's been a meeting place for film stars, such as Ingrid Bergman and Sigmund Freud, and today remains the place to be in the heart of Rome.

The story really begins in 1889 when affluent hotelier Francesco Nistelweck set eyes on the apartment building and was immediately inspired to transform it into a luxury hotel, convinced that the popularity of the new railway would guarantee him plenty of guests. He was right.

Fast forward to April 2017 and the hotel underwent a beautiful restoration to begin a new chapter in Dorchester Collection's illustrious history. In 2019 the hotel proudly celebrated its 130th anniversary.

DÉCOR

For the restoration in 2017, world-renowned architect and interior designers Bruno Moinard and Claire Bétaille of Moinard Bétaille, together with Patrick Jouin and Sanjit Manku, were entrusted with transforming the 98 guestrooms (a reduction from its former 121), rooftop restaurants and the hotel's first urban spa.

Throughout the restoration, each designer has taken special care in preserving the authentic spirit of the hotel to create the feeling of a splendid Italian home, blending contemporary features with the charm and authentic classic Roman style of the property. Guests enjoy a true Roman experience with its breathtaking views across the city.
